

Lewis Carter

President Röchling Engineered Plastics NorthAmerica

Lewis H. Carter, born on September 13, 1960 in Shamokin, Pennsylvania, USA, earned a degree in Business Administration at the University of West Virginia. He entered the working world in 1984 with an internship at Röchling Engineering Plastics in Haren, Germany. There, Carter learned about the commercial and technical aspects of the plastics business. Subsequently, he began his formal career as a sales engineer at Röchling Machined Plastics in Latrobe, Pennsylvania. In 1988, he became managing director there. In 1989, in addition to his duties at Röchling Machined Plastics, Carter assumed management responsibility at Röchling Engineered Plastics in Gastonia, North Carolina. Under his leadership, in 1992 an additional site was established in Ontario, California. In February 2007, Carter was also appointed CEO of the Canadian plastics specialist Symplastics Limited in Orangeville, Ontario. Symplastics belongs to the Röchling Engineering Plastics Group. Since 2007, he has been a member of the Röchling Management Board.
