

Heiko Maier

Chief Financial Officer Röchling Medical

Heiko Maier graduated with a degree in technically oriented business administration from the University of Stuttgart/Germany, with a focus on controlling, business planning, law and production engineering.

His professional career has included various leadership positions in finance and controlling, including roles at TRUMPF Werkzeugmaschinen, Refratechnik Cement, Magna Steyr Fuel Systems and Xenios, a holding company of Novalung GmbH and Medos Medizintechnik AG. In these roles, he was responsible for areas including financial accounting, controlling, liquidity planning, risk management, IT as well as integration and optimization projects.

As of 2017, Heiko Maier was a member of the Executive Board of Aluminium-Werke Wutöschingen AG & Co. KG. There, he was responsible for key corporate functions including finance, controlling, risk management, IT, human resources as well as supply chain management. In addition, he assumed the role of Managing Director of König Metallveredelung GmbH and supported the strategic development of the company.

As of July 1, 2026, Heiko Maier assumed the role of Chief Financial Officer of Röchling Medical.